Minimize Decision Making Bias

Teams and team leaders can often experience unrecognized biases when making decisions. Robert F. Wolf wrote about this challenge in an article on the Harvard Business School blog network. He noted that recognizing bias is an essential risk management strategy for effective project teams.

Wolf provided the following chart to help you be aware of and minimize various types of bias.

![Decision Bias Table]